7398

Manuscript page 7398, featuring two paragraphs of dense, cursive handwriting in a medieval script. The text is written on aged, yellowish parchment.

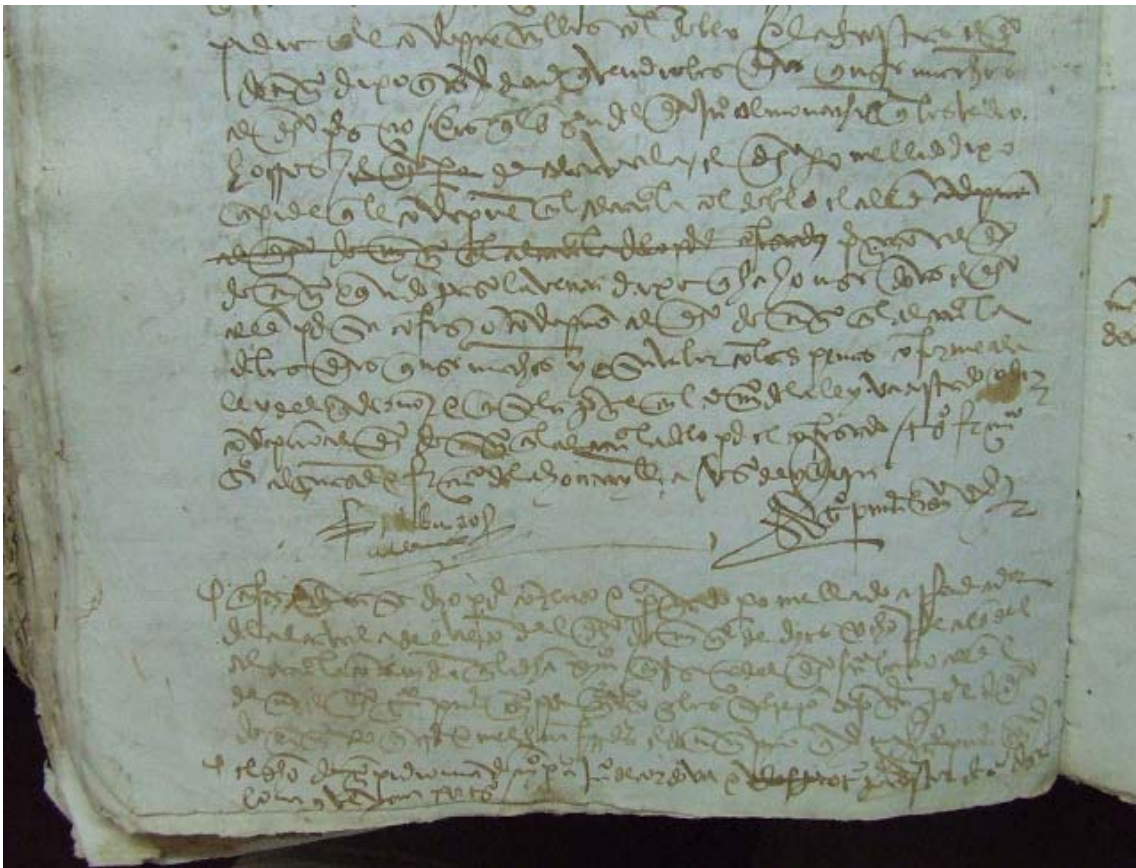

Paragraph 1 (top):
The text begins with a large initial 'F' and contains several lines of cursive script. It appears to be a formal document or a record of a specific event or agreement.

Paragraph 2 (middle):
This paragraph starts with another large initial, possibly 'S' or 'P'. The handwriting is consistent with the first paragraph, showing the characteristic features of medieval cursive, such as long, sweeping strokes and frequent ligatures.

Paragraph 3 (bottom):
The final paragraph is shorter and begins with a smaller initial. It concludes the text on the page, maintaining the same cursive style.

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin or a Romance language. The text is dense and fills most of the page. There are some marginalia on the left side, including the word "gemellus" and some smaller, less legible words. The script is cursive and somewhat difficult to decipher due to its age and style. The text appears to be a formal document or a letter, possibly related to a legal or administrative matter, given the use of words like "gemellus" (twin) and "procurator" (procurator).

7467

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin, covering the page. The text is dense and appears to be a historical or legal document. The script is a cursive Gothic hand, characteristic of the late Middle Ages. The text is written in dark ink on aged, slightly yellowed parchment. The lines are closely spaced, and the overall appearance is that of a well-used manuscript page. The text is arranged in a single column, filling most of the page's width. There are some larger initials or decorative elements interspersed throughout the text, though they are difficult to discern clearly due to the cursive nature of the script. The page number 7467 is printed in the top left corner.
